Young People

It's important to look after your digital wellbeing, especially at a time when you may be more likely to be using social media and connecting with others online.

Here are our tips for keeping safe online ...

Stranger Danger

You wouldn't talk to, share personal information or photos with a stranger on the street, so the same rule applies online. You never know who is really typing those messages! Always tell a parent, adult or Services for Young People personal adviser or youth worker straight away if messages or images you see or receive online make you feel uncomfortable.

Privacy Settings

Check your privacy settings on your social media accounts and make sure you have chosen the highest privacy setting so your profile and photos are hidden from people you do not know.

Create strong passwords

Create strong passwords for your social media accounts, with a mix of symbols, numbers and capital letters. Never share your passwords with anyone, not even friends.

Be kind to others online

It can be easy to type something mean or critical when you're hidden behind a screen. Just remember there is a real person on the other side of the screen so be respectful, polite and kind.

Never share your personal information

Never share your address, school, telephone number or date of birth details with someone online. Always tell an adult if someone is asking you for this information.

Nobody's life is perfect

The social media posts showing perfect lives and happy faces is just an illusion and is perhaps only a small part of that person's life in the real world. You can never tell what is really going in someone's life so take what you see online with a pinch of salt and try to avoid comparing your life with the too-good-to-be-true ones you see online.

Tips for staying safe online

Remember, posting is permanent!

After posting something online, anyone can save, download and re-use it! Think twice before posting something you may regret later – remember employers often check social profiles when hiring. Posting something in the heat of the moment or an inappropriate photo can make or break your future.

Learn to switch off

Spending too much time online can have a negative impact on your emotional wellbeing so take breaks away from social media to talk with friends and family via virtual face-to-face chat and look after those offline meaningful relationships with people you know make you feel good and you can share your worries with.
